

Borah Aim Interpreted As Effort to Liberalize GOP Before Convention

Idaho Senator Says Whether He Enters Primaries "Depends on Developments"; Is Interested in Putting Punch in Party.

LONDON "SUSPICIOUS"

Ohio Delegates Are Not Receptive To Talk About Borah for President.

Washington, Nov. 16 (AP).—Senator Borah's "definite objective" for 1936 was put down by political observers today as an effort to "liberalize" the Republican party and prevent the so-called "Old Guard" from controlling the national convention.

The Idaho Republican told reporters yesterday that whether he enters the primaries himself as a presidential candidate "depends on developments."

Borah's comments were one of three developments illustrating increasing interest in the 1936 campaign wars. The others were: An extraordinary pronouncement by President Roosevelt that Senator Norris, Republican of Nebraska, was necessary "in the Senate not only to Nebraska but to the United States as long as he lives."

A warning by Robert H. Lucas, who was executive director of the Republican national committee during part of the Hoover administration, that "unless a forthright and courageous national Republican leadership arouses the old-time fire" the party may "suffer general defeat."

Borah, in a press conference, said he had given some hint of his objective in a recent interview at Boise, in which it was emphasized he was not so much interested in the nomination himself as in seeing a liberal candidate chosen and a progressive platform adopted.

Parrying all direct questions about his own candidacy, Borah also refused to discuss other personalities. In reply to questions about Herbert Hoover, he said he did not know what was in his mind, but that the former president's friends were "working for his nomination."

Landon Looks Suspicious.

"Is Governor Landon, of Kansas, a candidate?" Borah was asked. "It looks rather suspicious," he replied.

Queried regarding Republican chances in the west, the Idahoan said: "The best answer I can give to that is if the election were held this year Roosevelt would carry the west."

President Roosevelt's unqualified endorsement of Norris raised questions as to what would happen in Nebraska next year.

For months, prospective candidates have been waiting to find out what Norris would do. They took with uncertainty reports he would retire. Then came Norris' denial he had made up his mind.

Lucas, in declaring the Republican party must have the "old time" fire, said the recent Kentucky gubernatorial fight, which the Democrat A. B. Chandler won, was "a warning proof of the low ebb to which the fighting spirit of the Republican organization has fallen."

Contrary to Ohio.

Xenia, O., Nov. 16 (AP).—Speculation on the possibility of Senator Borah of Idaho filling in Ohio for the Republican nomination for president prompted a G. O. P. spokesman to declare today "that would be contrary to the plans of most leaders here."

Congressman Leroy T. Marshall recalled the agreement made by 51 prominent Ohio Republicans October 4 to send an unopposed delegation to the national convention next year.

"We have refrained from discussing candidates, of course," Marshall said, "but if outside candidates, including Borah, came into Ohio and attempted to file names of candidates for delegates, it would be contrary both to the wishes and the plans of most of the leaders."

Yet it was recalled that young Ohio Republicans recently divided almost evenly in a poll on favorite presidential possibilities between Senator Borah and Governor Landon of Kansas, giving Borah 21 first choice votes and Landon 23.

But Marshall reiterated emphatically "Ohio is hoping for unopposed delegates."

A resolution adopted by the 31 leaders said that because of the present lack of crystallization of sentiment in the Republican presidential possibilities, it will probably be advisable that the Ohio delegation to the convention be a favorite one.

The leaders made an effort to select a favorite one to whom the delegation would be pledged in conformity to Ohio laws. They also recommended from the state central committee.

Britain's Family Lineup Shuffled

LADY NANCY ASTOR (By The Associated Press)

The family lineup in Great Britain's Parliament has been shuffled again, this time introducing a new combination—mother and son.

Lady Astor, the American-born Nancy Langhorne, won again a place in the House of Commons from Thursday's general elections. Her son, 27-year-old William Astor, also won a seat.

The Astor family thus holds six seats in Parliament, an increase of one. Viscount Astor has a permanent seat in the House of Lords, and three other relatives by marriage are members.

A father-and-daughter combination, David Lloyd George and Megan, also came successfully through the elections.

The Macdonald family—Ramsay, the father, former prime minister and lord president of the council; and Malcolm, the son, Colonial secretary—were voted out of Parliament.

Two other famous fathers won their places in Commons—but saw their sons lose. Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin was unopposed for reelection. His Socialist son, Oliver, was defeated.

Winston Churchill, former first lord of the admiralty and mentioned for that post again in the new government, won, but Randolph Churchill lost.

Prisoner Is Freed

Rochester, N. Y., Nov. 16 (AP).—Harry W. Phillips, 33, of Buffalo, who discovered a flaw in his conviction while studying law in Auburn prison, was a free man today. He was indicted in 1933 for criminally receiving stolen property but pleaded guilty to second degree larceny and was sentenced to five years in Auburn. His claim that he pleaded to the wrong charge was sustained in Supreme Court at Auburn and he was returned here yesterday to have the error corrected. County Judge William C. Kohlmeier suspended sentence when Phillips pleaded guilty as originally indicted. The judge said that Phillips already had served two and a half years and would soon have been eligible for parole had the original sentence stood.

James Donlon, 18, of Bearsville, sought as one of the three men who unlawfully entered the Clowry Chapman house last Tuesday at Bearsville and wrecked household goods to the extent of $15,000 damage, is in custody of the police at Holly, N. J., awaiting the arrival of Sergeant James J. Cunningham and Walter Keefe of the State Troopers.

The state police arrested George Ronk, 26, and Harry Harden Bentley, 17, both of Woodstock, Thursday on charges of third degree burglary, accusing them of breaking into the Chapman house. The Troopers said the two confessed, involving Donlon in their statements about breaking into the house and breaking up dishes, mirrors, furniture and antiques among which were three vases valued at $2,000. Donlon faces the same charge lodged against the other two, burglary in the third degree.

Sergeant Cunningham said that two other charges may be lodged, also. The trio allegedly stole a keg of beer off a Ballantine truck which constituted highway robbery and their activities at the Chapman house in destroying the articles may result in a charge of malicious destruction of another's property.

When Donlon is brought back to Ulster county he will be arraigned before Justice Wallace Shultis at Woodstock. Justice Shultis held Bentley and Ronk for the grand jury. This probably will be Donlon's fate also.

Man Injured in Hurley Avenue Crash Is Dead Of Fractured Skull

Morris Kruger, 31, of Woodridge, N. Y., who was injured early Friday morning when the Ford sedan he was riding in crashed into a tree at the Beatty turn on Hurley avenue, died shortly before 11 o'clock last night. Death was due to a fracture of the skull. Morris Gerson, 30, and Jacob Hecht, 30, both of Woodridge, are still in the Kingston Hospital and their condition is reported as fair. Gerson sustained a compound fracture of the right leg and bruises to the body, while Hecht was injured about the left side and the right foot.

According to the police report Gerson was driving the car. The trio were proceeding out Hurley avenue and the car failed to make the turn in the road and crashed into a roadside tree where it caught fire and was destroyed.

Hecht apparently the less seriously injured of the three, pulled his two companions from the burning car. All three men were lying on the ground when Kenneth Dudley of 42 Teller street, who was passing, saw them and hurrying to the nearest telephone he notified the police department.

A radio call was sent out over the air and picked up by one of the police radio cars who removed the three men to the hospital.

10-Year Slum Clearance Plan to Cost a Billion Considered at Capital

Project To Provide Low-Rent Houses and Clear Slums Is Being Discussed by Roosevelt Administration Leaders.

500,000 JOBS WEEKLY

Harry Hopkins Faced with Task of Placing Huge Number of Men To Meet Goal.

Washington, Nov. 16 (AP).—A ten-year slum clearance and low-rent public housing program with an appropriation close to $1,000,000,000 to start it off is under discussion in the Roosevelt administration.

Senator Wagner (D-N.Y.), who was prominently identified with the social security, labor disputes and railway pensions measures, said he had talked over the idea with President Roosevelt in a general way and will go into it in more detail when the president returns from his Thanksgiving trip to Warm Springs, Ga.

"This would not be an emergency proposition, but a definite ten year plan," Wagner said in an interview.

He asserted such a program had been "a boon" to the building industry and persons with low incomes in England and European countries.

"It is in slums where disease and crime is spread," he said.

Wagner thought it would be a good idea to consolidate the existing "scattered" housing agencies in the interior department and resettlement administration.

He said he believed there would be no necessity for additional work relief appropriations at the next session of congress and that money for social betterment could now be turned to such things as housing.

He has a bill pending which he hopes will form the basis for discussion. It would create a permanent division of housing in Secretary Ickes' department.

The new agency could make grants and loans to local public housing bodies for low-rent and slum-eradicating projects. The government would put up 30 per cent of the cost of labor and materials, the local institutions the remainder.

Where no responsible housing body existed, the agency could build and operate housing.

Hopkins' Task

Five hundred thousand jobs a week was the task facing Harry L. Hopkins, Works Progress administrator, today to reach his goal of having 3,500,000 relief recipients at work by December 1.

The latest figures showed 290,194 were given employment in the week ended November 9. This indicated to some officials that Hopkins would not be entirely successful unless added speed was shown in getting projects under way.

At the last count 2,990,339 persons were at work—some 1,490,661 short of the administration's objective.

Nevertheless, Hopkins is proceeding with his intention of shutting off all direct federal relief to states by December 1 and to date has cut off 26 states from the so-called "dole."

Some encouragement in the employment drive was found in the fact that Comptroller General J. R. McCarty yesterday released $175,000,000 of the last $200,000,000 set aside for Public Works Administration projects under Secretary Ickes.

Ickes at once notified state PWA directors to instruct the municipalities receiving these allotments "to proceed without delay."

How many persons can be given jobs quickly on this type of work remains to be seen. To date 2,288 have been employed on both housing and non-federal PWA projects. The deadline for starting these projects is December 15.

Will Follow Code

Washington, Nov. 16 (AP).—Mine owners producing two-thirds of the nation's soft coal have pledged they will comply with the Guffey act setting up a "little NRA" in the industry. The bituminous coal commission said yesterday that operators who mined 221,671,609 tons in 1934 had signed the code. Total output was 358,255,000 tons. The Internal Revenue Bureau has enlarged its staff to collect the 1½ per cent tax from those companies which adhere to the code and the 15 per cent tax against those who do not. The non-complying companies will pay, it was estimated, $24,000,000 annually in taxes.

Autopsy Performed On Henry Weeks To Find The Cause of His Death

District Attorney Refuses to Comment on Factors Brought Out in Autopsy Performed by Three Doctors Today.

WAS POISONED

Aged Man Was Treated at Kingston Hospital for Strychnine Poisoning; Pneumonia Developed.

Henry Weeks, the 71-year-old resident of Lawrenceville street, town of Ulster, who drank strychnine in his whiskey, died at the Kingston Hospital, Friday night, at 8 10 o'clock.

His nephew, Floyd A. Weeks, 31, is in the Ulster county jail on a charge of attempted murder, first degree, having been accused of putting poison in the liquor. The younger Weeks, who is said to have confessed to State Troopers Arthur A. Reilly and John S. Metzger, that he put the strychnine in the drink, has not been informed of his uncle's death.

Whether the charge will be changed to a more serious one, since the death of the older Weeks, is uncertain. After the aged man had been treated for strychnine poisoning, lobar pneumonia developed. This caused a severe strain on his physical stamina, and, according to reports was the chief factor in the cause of death.

So the charge against Floyd A. Weeks depends on the outcome of an autopsy, which has already been performed. Dr. Frederick Snyder, Dr. John B. Krom, both members of the Kingston Hospital staff, and Dr. James S. Taylor, pathologist of the Kingston City Laboratory, performed an autopsy following Weeks' death. They would not report their findings publicly, however, leaving this to the district attorney's office.

This morning District Attorney Cleon B. Murray said he was not ready to issue any report yet, concerning the autopsy. He did not say whether the physicians had completed their work or whether a full report had been made by them.

Murray Refuses Comment

Although the district attorney was not ready to hand out any statements, it is presumed that young Weeks will not face a more serious charge than attempted murder in the first degree.

Henry Weeks was admitted to the Kingston Hospital a week ago Friday to be treated for a convulsion he was seized with in the home of a neighbor, Mrs. Frank Cure. He said he experienced the attack after he had drunk some whiskey purchased in the afternoon by him and his nephew. A test at the city laboratory revealed the liquor contained strychnine poison.

Several days later, Tuesday, November 12, Floyd Weeks was taken into custody by State Troopers Reilly and Metzger on information given to Assistant District Attorney N. Levan Haver by the elder Weeks. When questioned by the troopers about purchasing the whiskey and leaving it in the garage for his uncle to drink, the man now in jail denied some of the things told by his uncle. However, after more than three hours of grilling he is alleged to have confessed to the troopers that he put the contents of a vial of strychnine in the liquor. Pressed further, young Weeks said he threw the empty poison bottle away and that it dropped in a field near the Chambers Lane on the Saugerties road. The troopers later found it there. The bottle is being checked on at several big drug houses in New York, to ascertain where it was obtained. Young Weeks has not told where he got it.

It is believed by the troopers that the motive for the attempted murder was to obtain property and money. The district attorney's office in investigating found that the Weeks held a joint bank account for $1,000 and that the elder one had made a will leaving his property to his nephew.

Funeral on Tuesday

The funeral of Mr. Weeks will be held from the W. N. Conner Funeral Home, 236 Fair street, on Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock. The services will be private, but the body may be viewed at any time at the funeral home before the service. Burial will be private in the Weeks cemetery in the town of Ulster. Mr. Weeks is survived by two brothers, Berlin and Grandville Weeks, both of Kingston, and two nephews, Floyd and Chester Weeks of this city.

Mrs. Andrew Walmsley Dies In Phoenixia Fire; Autopsy May Be Ordered

Belgian Financier, Economist, Dead

EMILE FRANQUI

Brussels, Nov. 16 (AP).—Emile Francqui, 72, noted Belgian financier and economist, died today.

Francqui, regarded by the Belgians as a financial wizard, began his career as an army officer.

It was he who, in 1891, gained the Belgian Congo for King Leopold II by leading a Belgian expedition into Africa. He became known as "The Copper King of the Congo."

After his coup in Africa, he went to China as consul general at Tientsin. Later, as a civilian, he gained important concessions there.

He represented Belgium in the drafting of the Dawes and Young plans and during the stormy financial period of last year maintained the Belgas on the gold standard as financial dictator of his nation.

Three Armed Bandits Pull Off Liquor Job In Butler Yesterday

Local Police Believe Butler Job Was Pulled Off By Same Gang That Held Up And Robbed Colonial Liquors Distributors, Inc.—Butler Police Notify Kingston of Holdup There.

Chief of Police J. Allan Wood said this morning that he had received word from the police department of Butler, Pennsylvania, telling how a liquor house there had been held up and robbed by three armed bandits who answered to the description of the three armed men who entered the office of the Colonial Liquor Distributors, Inc., on Pine Grove avenue Wednesday night, and got away with $380 in cash and about $500 in checks.

The Butler police stated in their message that they expected to round up the gang in that state or in Ohio, and asked if the Kingston authorities planned to extradite the three men when they were apprehended. Chief Wood notified the Butler police that Kingston would take steps to extradite the three men to Kingston if they were caught.

Shortly before midnight Wednesday the three armed bandits wearing handkerchiefs over the lower part of their faces walked over the stairs of the building at 16 Pine Grove avenue and entered the office of the Colonial Liquor Distributors, Inc., on the second floor where they found John Murphy of 24 West O'Reilly street, a clerk in the employ of the concern, busy at his desk. They ordered him to get up and stand against the wall with his arms above his head. In an adjoining room was George Smith of 154 Fair street, janitor of the building, who was busy cleaning up. Two of the armed men entered the room and forced Smith to walk into the office where he and Murphy were tied up with cash cord.

When the bandits learned that the money they sought was in a safe they untied Murphy and forced him to gun point to open the safe.

In carrying out the holdup the bandits whether they handled anything in the safe or the office were careful to place handkerchiefs about their hands so that no finger prints were left behind.

After clearing out the safe the three men made their escape in an automobile.

According to the Butler police the bandits there worked in the same manner that they pulled off the Kingston job.

Before receiving word from Butler the local police spent the day checking on suspects and running down a number of rumors.

6 Persons Now Dead

Calte, Nov. 16 (AP).—Two of six persons wounded in a clash with police Thursday died today, bringing to six the number of dead arising from anti-British demonstrations over the two days of rioting with its demands for the return of British troops from India.

The work of the fire department was hindered by the fire as a result of the rioting. While the building was being attacked the firemen were unable to get to the burning building, according to the Viceroy's Council in London.

TRUCKMAN SAW FIRE

Mrs. Walmsley's Body Found Badly Burned Lying Across Bed; Lamp Theory Held.

Fire which badly damaged the three-family house owned by Clinton D. Yerry at Phoenixia shortly before midnight Friday was responsible for the death of Mrs. Andrew Walmsley, 31 years old, who with her husband and son occupied one of the apartments in the house. Just how Mrs. Walmsley met her death is a mystery. After the fire had been subdued her body was found on the bed in the second story bedroom quite badly burned by the flames but the cause of death is supposedly from suffocation although an autopsy will probably be ordered by District Attorney Cleon B. Murray in order to determine whether Mrs. Walmsley may not have suffered a heart attack in the excitement.

Both Mr. Walmsley and his son, William, 12 years old, escaped from the house by jumping from the second story window when escape was cut off from the stairs. Mrs. Walmsley was at the window ready to jump but for some unknown reason she remained in the room and apparently was suffocated by the smoke and fumes. Whether she suffered a heart attack or whether she returned to the room to save something and was then overcome remains a mystery.

Truckman Saw Fire

At about 10 30 o'clock a passing truckman saw the flames and notified the people in the house. At the time Mr. and Mrs. Walmsley had retired and the son had also retired but was awake reading. He smelled smoke and notified his parents. Their sleeping quarters were located on the upper floor of the frame building which is on the Chester road about a quarter of a mile from the junction. Apparently the fire had started in the kitchen below the sleeping quarters in the Walmsley apartments and while the cause is not definitely known it is supposed that it was started from a lamp which presumably had been extinguished but which apparently exploded. The fire was burning briskly when discovered and the Phoenixia firemen found a hard task on their hands when they arrived. The pumper was hooked up and a stream was also put on from the hydrant but as soon as the fire was extinguished in one place it would break out in a new place in the frame building which was celled up with wood instead of the usual plaster.

Started Downstairs

The fire apparently started in the downstairs portion of the Walmsley apartment and cut off escape by the stairway which led from the sleeping quarters. When the family found escape by the stairs was cut off they returned to the bedroom where Mrs. Walmsley opened the window and told her son and husband to jump, saying that she would follow. The father and son jumped but Mrs. Walmsley failed to follow and it is presumed she was overcome by the smoke and fumes.

When the fire had been extinguished sufficiently for firemen to enter they found Mrs. Walmsley lying across the bed, apparently from suffocation although her body was quite badly burned. A doctor was summoned but she was dead when found.

Deputy Sheriff Herbert Segelken who made an investigation of the fire and questioned the occupants of the house was unable to learn anything definite but it is believed that when the lamp downstairs was extinguished the oil container causing the lamp later to explode.

Coroner Howard R. Hamilton of Kerhonkson was notified and went to the scene and made an investigation. He gave as his verdict death by suffocation but the investigation was still being open pending further inquiry.

Start of Fire

The fire apparently started in the Walmsley rooms on the first floor where the kitchen and living rooms are located. The stairway leading to the second floor opens off the living room and when the family learned of the fire escape was cut off by the fire in the living room.

In the house below the Walmsley family was the Jones family and also a family named Barrett. Mr. Jones who was ill with rheumatism was carried from the house and all of the occupants except Mrs. Walmsley were able to escape.

The work of the fire department was hindered by the fire as a result of the rioting. While the building was being attacked the firemen were unable to get to the burning building, according to the Viceroy's Council in London.

Religious Drama at Redeemer Lutheran

Sunday evening, November 17, at 7:45 o'clock, the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer, located at the corner of Wurts and Rogers streets, will present a religious drama. It is called "The Unknown Soldier Speaks" and is a powerful portrayal of the experiences of the World War as reflected in the life of the Unknown Soldier. The setting of the play is laid in Arlington Cemetery, the place where the body of the Unknown Soldier is enshrined. One evening a minister walks into the cemetery to be alone and to meditate upon the nameless liddle and the whole war business. As he sits there with his thoughts, the Unknown Soldier emerges from the tomb and engages in conversation with the minister. What he has to say is a moving appeal for peace so that the outrages committed against him and his buddies in the name of patriotism will never be repeated. Anyone who is interested in World Peace should see this dramatization.

The part of the Unknown Soldier will be played by S. Telford Reed and that of the minister by the Rev. Russell S. Gaezle. Tape will be sounded by Frank Sasa. The Rev. Goodrich Gates of the First Presbyterian Church will assist in the service. The properties have been arranged by Messrs. Carl Burleson, George Messinger and Montgomery Bailey. The Senior Choir will render an appropriate anthem.

Efforts have been made to give this service adequate publicity. An invitation has been extended to the local post of the American Legion and to the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

The individual co-operation of every member, or interested party, is urged.

Freeman Editorial
Rosendale, Nov. 15
Editor, Kingston Freeman

Dear Sir: Being a steady reader of your editorials, would you grant me some space for an answer of one of your editorials, entitled "Business Parity," which appeared in your paper November 9. But before going any further I want to call your attention to a gross error, right in the beginning of your article, in the following notation: "If industrial employment lately is up to 91 per cent of an estimated normal, that is promising. Parity is not far ahead. But if employment is only up 82 per cent and payroll only 74 per cent, that is not so good."

I think this is rather confusing for the average reader when you use the word employment twice.

At first I was puzzled myself and only after reading the article over several times it dawned on me that the thing which is up 91 per cent is industrial production and not employment.

I hope I made myself clear to you and your readers.

As far as the rest of your article goes I fully agree with you word for word and I am very thankful to you that you touched that subject in your paper.

But what I would like you to do, is to point to a possible way to pull ourselves out of our present economic difficulty and the big question is whether it is at all possible within our present economic system to wipe out the discrepancy between production employment and wages. Of course, I understand very well that you could not do that very well without stepping on somebody's toes. So we will let it go at that.

In my opinion there is no other problem which is of such vital importance to every one of us and if we do not find a way very soon for a better distribution of the enormous wealth which we are capable of producing and which is so essential for our life comfort and happiness there can be no security for any of us should we fail to find a remedy. It is my opinion that we are headed for anarchy and chaos.

I sincerely hope that you bring up that same subject and similar ones more often in your editorials.

Thanking you in advance I remain sincerely yours

F. L. Rosendale, N. Y.

CRAZY TO HAVE A CAR. CAR DRIVES HIM CRAZY
Weatherford, Okla. (P)—Johnny Klansen, 18, always had been crazy for a car, and now that he has one, it's almost driven him crazy.

The day after he purchased it, all the tires were stolen.

By harvest field labor, he made enough to replace the tires and drove to a tent revival. There the car was stolen.

Klansen pursued in a friend's car, caught his wayward auto and although he recovered it, the two would-be thieves gave Klansen a beating.

Two days later motor trouble developed on a side road and he spent the night in the car.

While it was being towed to Klansen's home it burst into flames.

His repair bill equaled his total summer's savings.

Delightful Program Of Russian Music

In the lecture on Russian music which he will give next Tuesday evening, November 19, at the Albany Avenue Baptist Church, Professor Streisky will be assisted by Leonid M. Mestechin, distinguished Russian pianist and teacher of music. Following a short explanation of Russian music by Professor Streisky, Professor Mestechin will illustrate with selections from Tchaikovsky, Rimsky-Korsakov and Moussorgsky, the three Russian composers most familiar to Americans. Among other selections he will play Moussorgsky's "Pictures at an Exhibition," a marvelously descriptive musical account of a series of pictures seen in a gallery, with a variety of character depiction and scenic effects.

Professor Mestechin has given recitals in many of the larger cities of Europe. He received his musical education at the Petrograd Conservatory. He also studied as an advanced pupil with Leschinsky, instructor of Padewski. For four years Professor Mestechin was director of the Imperial Conservatory at Zhitomir, later teaching piano at the Imperial Conservatory of Kiev. He has been the conductor of a symphony orchestra as well as the leader of several large choruses. A brilliant pianist, an able teacher and a delightful personality, Professor Mestechin is richly equipped to provide an audience with an unusually satisfying evening of music.

In order that the many music lovers of the city may have the opportunity of hearing this noted pianist, the Kingston College Women's Club has decided to sell single admission tickets for this lecture-recital. Tickets may be secured at the church hall.

Younger Set Enjoy Supper and Dance

One of the outstanding events of the social season for Kingston's younger set was the supper-dance held under the auspices of the Student Council of the Morran School of Business last Friday, November 8, at the Governor Clinton Hotel. The dancing took place in the popular Crystal Room, but through the courtesy of the hotel, the luxurious and spacious lounge was at the disposal of the guests. Ray Randall's excellent orchestra provided the music for dancing, which consisted of the most popular of new songs, as well as several melodious old favorites.

Colonel Girard McEntee and Mrs. McEntee were present, having kindly consented to act in the capacity of chaperons.

The entertainment was in the hands of a capable committee, and the results of its efforts were highly satisfactory, as shown by the approval of the guests and the rounds of applause which were accorded each performer at the conclusion of his number. Each was announced by Roger Eastman, whose personality and charm makes him an ever-popular master of ceremonies. The first was a clever exhibition of first-class tap-dancing by Harry Thorne, whose versatility was shown by the number of various difficult steps included in his dance. Next, Robert Craft, gifted young cornet player, rendered two solos, thrilling his audience with lightning runs in the first, and captivating them with the softness and beauty of his second number, "The Rosary," which was especially commendable. Following this, Donnie Clark, popular and promising young soloist, sang "I'm in the Mood for Love," and "Accent on Youth," with his usual skill and charm. Another short dance, led by Harry Thorne followed, and in the evening Ed McKinnon executed a whirlwind novelty dance which ended the floor-show with a bang-up climax.

At 12:02 a dainty, appetizing supper was served. Since it was a buffet supper, the gentlemen, much to the delight of the ladies, were requested to stand in line in a room adjoining the ballroom, while the ladies settled themselves comfortably to await their return with the supper. The party dispersed at about 2 o'clock, with the greater part of the guests still dancing and reluctant to leave.

The Players Guild To Present 'The Patsy'

The Players Guild met on Thursday evening at 8 o'clock at the Municipal Auditorium, with over 100 members in attendance. The Guild has as a sponsor the Kingston Hospital. This group is planning to give the three act play, "The Patsy." The proceeds from which will be donated to charity. "The Patsy," as written by Harry Green, has been popularized in the United States and throughout Europe. Barrie Conners is one of the greatest present day authors. Casting will be supervised by Miss Tarrant who is widely known throughout this district for her successful productions. This play "The Patsy" will be presented the latter part of December.

The president of the Guild received a number of letters from organized Players Guilds throughout the state. Naturally activities were compared and found that the Kingston Players Guild stood out from those of Albany and other large cities. Forums have been forming after the meeting and discussion and instruction of dramatic phases will be offered at future meetings. At these forums Mrs. B. S. Jones of Boston will speak on the advantages of the knowledge of the foundations of dramatics. Mrs. Jones is widely known in the state. She is president of two successful stock companies. Mayor Heintzelman is a life member of the organization and endorsed it when originated. An enthusiastic interest has been shown by the younger group, but lately older members of the community have been coming. We wish to extend a cordial invitation to all who are interested in dramatics or the phases connected with it. The Players Guild throughout the states have been endorsed by men in creditable positions of the state and federal government. They are planning an intra-state conference to be held in New York city the latter part of March. Kingston hopes at that time to be represented at this conference. Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock there will be a special meeting of the Players Guild to select characters in order to start casting "The Patsy." The public is invited for try outs.

Interesting Relics At St. James Church

One of the features of the Home Coming program of the St. James Methodist Episcopal Church is proving of interest, particularly to the older members of the congregation. Those who attended the former church edifice will find a number of photographs of this fine edifice with its tall Colonial pillars. The altar of this building has also been partially reconstructed with part of the old altar rail, marble topped table and pastor's kneeling stool. There is even an old melodica in good working condition, loaned for the occasion by the Salvation Army. It was such an instrument that was carried to church each Sunday to provide music for the congregation.

One of the most prized exhibits is a beautiful silver service given to the paragon by Sarah Jane Ackery Connelly. On display also are two of the old large communion cups. A beautiful gold pin has been loaned by Mrs. Elwood Ackery, which was given her upon the occasion of her golden wedding by the congregation of St. James Church. At the same time the Rev. Ackery was presented with a gold headed cane, which is also being shown.

Exhibit A is the old church records, dating back nearly a hundred years with the names of those married and baptized. And those attending are finding it great fun to hunt out the names of their parents, grandparents, relatives and friends. Also in this exhibit are a number of class books and ledgers. Mrs. Duncan Lawrence has given several old Bibles and a large collection of pictures of different pastors, members of the church and class gatherings. Among Mrs. Lawrence's possessions is a very old hymnal which at one time belonged to Mrs. John de la Montagne. Last, but certainly not least, in the display is a beautiful, handmade silk quilt containing over a hundred years old containing over 3,000 pieces. This was loaned by Mrs. Augustus H. Van Buren.

In this display the committee are offering interesting bits of detail in the history of St. James Church. Those arranging the exhibit were Mrs. Edwin L. Merritt, Mrs. Charles Young, Mrs. S. Maxwell Taylor, Miss Minnie Rieley, Mrs. Viola Babcock and Mrs. Clarence Schoonmaker. The committee also records, Miss Margaret Treadwell, Mrs. Olivia Betts, Mrs. Robert Hudier, John Betts, Mrs. Robert Batten, William Gregory, Louis Spencer arranged for the exhibition of old church records.

MORE WEALTH TO DIVIDE

"I have every sympathy with labor," says Dr. Ralph C. Epstein, dean of the University of Buffalo Business Administration. "And my respect goes out to those persons who are honestly trying to raise the standard of living for the average man." But he refuses to go along with those who cry: "It's there.
 The rich have it. All you have to do is to take the excess away and divide it up," and every one will have enough." Analyzing the country's wealth, Dr. Epstein finds that about 600,000 Americans in 1931 had income over $5,000. Suppose we regard all above that figure as excess wealth, and proceed to divide it up among the others. There would be $4,000,000,000 to divide, he says, and the gain in annual income
 among those with less than $5,000 would be only $100 a year. Now, even such a gain is not to be scorned as an addition to the salary of the wage-earner or small-salaried person.
 Yet it looks petty in comparison with the lavish promises made to the poor by demagogues. Some further improvements in wealth distribution may well be made, but arbitrary distribution cannot accomplish what visionaries expect.

Dr. Epstein logically points out that the first requirement for raising low incomes is greater production of wealth. "The plain, hard fact is that not enough wealth is produced
 even in this, the richest of nations.
 For a plentiful distribution of wealth and income we need first to have enough to distribute." Here is a practical, hard-headed advocacy of the "gospel of plenty." And there can be no plenty to share until the idle men and idle dollars are put to work creating it. Not for a mere 35 hours a week, either. There will be time for that when all of us have all the things we want.

RADIO DOPE.

A good deal of the kicking about radio programs is unfair, says a service man. There has been much improvement. Programs are broadcast better than ever before. Commercial announcements, too, are becoming more dignified. You can get a couple of hours' good entertainment any evening by dialing around a little. "That may be true," says a radio editor, "but he hasn't said anything about present-day announcers. Some are so stilted in their burlesque that you expect them to fall over the microphones. Others are raspy-voiced. Some are too honey-tongued, and others hawk the radio wares as if they were ball-bearings at a county fair."

The hardest type to endure are the announcers who go at their radio audience in a frenzy, dishing their blarney into the hearers' ears with such insistent vigor and repetition that everybody within range of that terrible voice wants to smash the radio set. Did anybody ever sell anything that way? The good salesman, on the air or anywhere else, quietly and pleasantly slips an idea
 into the listener's mind, then stops.

SHRINKING GIANT.

Stranger in the case of John Anson, professional giant, sick in a Los Angeles hospital with an illness which is bringing his huge bulk down to normal. He has been nearly nine feet tall and has weighed 450 pounds, and always made a good living as a circus freak. But during the last six months he has lost 150 pounds and several inches in height.

Giant and dwarf doctors have discovered, were their unusual size due to excessive stimulation or under-stimulation of certain ductless glands. The gland-control which made Anson big has now apparently gone into reverse. It wouldn't be so bad if his shrinking were not accompanied by sickness. He is too weak to walk. Medical science has discovered a gland-dwarf that the way nature operates through these potent little glands tucked away in odd parts of the body, but has not yet learned how to control them artificially. Eventually we shall probably see giants and dwarfs made to order through medical control.

ITALY FIGHTS BACK.

The Italian reaction against the penalties imposed on Italy for breaking her international promises has started. Students parade and demonstrate against fellow-members of the League of Nations applying the League sanctions. They demand the closing of shops displaying foreign products. Italian athletes pledge themselves not to compete in sanction countries. Dreammakers in Italian cities decide to bar styles of such countries. And so on.

This is probably inevitable. Almost any country would do such things in the same situation. But fortunately for civilization, more and more countries refuse to tolerate public policies that tend to put them in such a situation. More and more people throughout the world are coming to see that war turns human reason inside out and upside down.

DISHERS FOR DESSERT

The caption above is meant literally. A Chicago genius demonstrated, at the convention of the American Bakers' Association, a wonderful new idea. Plates, cups and so on are made of baked bread dough, of a consistency that will hold the food and drink, yet edible. The idea is said to be this: "You eat your meal and then eat your dishes." It is supposed to simplify the kitchen problem.

Some restaurant people might like
 it. Some housewives might like it.
 But we'll say right here that very few men would like it. We'll help to wash the dishes, when we can't escape it, but doggoned if we'll eat them! And we doubt if the kids will, unless they've had ice cream in them.

STOMACH CANCER SYMPTOMS

"About one-third of all cancers occur in the stomach. If this annual death rate is to be reduced it must come through early discovery of the cancer and its removal by operation.
 Reports from the Mayo clinic show that patients present themselves for treatment on an average from six to ten months after the beginning of the stomach symptoms—too late in many cases for operation."

I am quoting Dr. Claude J. Hunt, Kansas City, Mo., in an address to the Missouri State Medical Association some months ago.

Now, the first fault would seem to be that of the patient, who must know by all the publicity given cancer, that cancer comes on at or slightly past middle age, and that any "persistent indigestion" at this time may be cancer.

The fault is the second instance is that of the physician in not insisting, despite the cost, on an X-ray examination. Considering that in the early stages the X-ray is the best method of finding out if cancer is present, its cost should not be considered when cancer is suspected.
 Because in cancer of the stomach, discovered too late, there is no chance for a cure.

Further, when the condition present is reasonably certain of being cancer in its early stage, some physicians do not insist strongly enough on an operation to discover whether or not it is really a cancer. This is called an "exploratory" operation, as it is for the purpose of opening the abdomen and exploring its contents.

The results in this type of surgery have been so beneficial as measured by comfort and extended life that operation has been well justified.

The points to remember then are:
 1. Cancer of the stomach occurs in one-third of all cases;
 2. It occurs with very little early symptoms and is, therefore, likely to be unsuspected;
 3. An "exploratory" operation will save life in early cases (give comfort and extended life).

Cancer of the stomach is the easiest and hardest to cure according to whether operation is early or late. The early diagnosis or discovery of cancer is based on a complete X-ray examination, as "there are no signs or symptoms distinctive of early cancer."

HIGH COURAGE

SYNOPSIS: Anne Farnsworth is on trial for the murder of her uncle, Luke Farnsworth, who has been found to be the only one who has been able to control the situation.
 The trial is being held at the Kingston Court House, and the judge is Mr. J. H. Klock.

Chapter 31
 TECLA'S STORY

ANNE had come down to Astoria,
 the district attorney charged,
 and once there set about fomenting trouble among the people working for her late father's business.
 When her uncle had gone out to investigate one of the many groundless charges, that a "bootleg" trap was working with the Farnsworth business, she had followed and had shot him down.

She had used Luke Farnsworth's gun, stolen from the house when she ran away from it. She had thought to throw it away but had become entangled in a fish net and did not clear the boat and drop into the river as she had intended.

She had forced the Sorki brothers, whom she had helped purchase the boat she used, into landing her at an isolated pier, and had sneaked home.

Upon hearing they had been arrested for the crime, she had depended upon her former prestige as Anne Farnsworth to try to free them.
 All of these things he would prove,
 he said.

Lenholm outlined his defense, and it was pitifully weak. Anne realized how slim a chance she would have of being found not guilty.

Warily she listened as the State presented its case. Each line of evidence seemed a cord, binding her to a verdict of murder in the first degree.

She returned to jail that night worn in body and spirit. What chance had she against the hatred of the men condemning her? Perhaps it would be better, as they had suggested, to plead guilty and receive an intermediate sentence.

If only John... but she had searched the court room. John wasn't there.

Days sped along and then came the words, "The State rests." Lenholm had little to offer save the word of the Sorki brothers. He passed these quickly and called Anne to the stand. She heard the name "Nikki Nielsen," and arose.

The expense of rug from chair to witness stand stretched before her as, said as water.

"Miss Nikki," prompted the attorney.

Anne thought of Charlotte Farnsworth's triumphant expression, and chin up, walked steadily to the chair.

She looked out on the sea of faces, noticed newspaper reporters watching her intently, and then she saw Tecla, little Tecla, sitting bravely in the front row smiling, the high dimples wet with tears.

Anne relaxed and turned to Len-holm.

"Your name is Anne Farnsworth,"
 he asked.

"I object," burst from the district attorney. "There is nothing to prove this girl is other than Nikki Nielsen as charged."

"Your name please," Lenholm requested.

Anne was silent.

"Young lady," the judge leaned over, "what is your name?"

"As far as I know, it is Anne Farnsworth."

"This is most irregular, this young woman is charged under the name of Nikki Nielsen. She gives her name as Anne Farnsworth."

"YOUR honor," explained the district attorney, "we have used the name Nikki Nielsen as an expedient, the girl is nameless."

"She is not!" The words spat out across the court room like an electric shock. "She has the name. I give the proof."

Tecla darted to the railing which divided the court from the audience. Anne watched her dig deep in the bag she held.

"Your honor," Lenholm was re-sistent, "may I ask for a recall? It is possible this woman, who was the childhood nurse of the defendant, has information vital to our case."

"Five minutes," agreed the judge,
 and to the jurors. "You will remain in your seats."

The five minutes were scarcely necessary. Lenholm, his face slightly returned, crossed Anne from the witness chair and asked that Tecla
 Sorki be sworn in as a witness.

A Washington Daybook

WASHINGTON.—Less than a week after the November 5 election results had been tabulated Washington heard that word has been passed to another, at least temporarily, almost matured plans for more legislation broadening some phases of the "new deal."

All of which means, apparently, that so far as the "brain trust" is concerned the lid has been clamped down for the coming session of congress.

Barling necessary legislation resulting from possible adverse decisions of the supreme court and the soldiers' bonus, politicians and observers here believe that President Roosevelt will realize his long cherished wish for a "short and snappy session" of congress.

It is reported as certain, at least,
 that the White House and administration leaders on Capitol Hill will do everything in their power to discourage legislative innovations and further tinkering with "new deal" machinery.

A SPECIFIC example of this desire to quiet restless proponents of further "new deal" legislation is had in the case of the securities and exchange commission.

 eration amendments designed to strengthen the original act—for the

Talks to Parents

Tag-Alongs
 By BROOKE PETERS CHURCH

A sure trouble breeder in any family is the small child who tags after his elder brothers and sisters. Parents often think him very funny.
 John's or Susy's blunders at the things which the youngsters repeats the imitations which he gives seem to them cause for uproarious mirth.

The parents are either too lazy to hold the small fry off, or they think the whole thing a matter of no importance. When later, Johnny and Susy prefer to meet their friends elsewhere and not bring them into the gold-fish existence of home, the parents are grieved and surprised.

When father and mother wish to converse privately with their friends, or play contract in the evening, or even to sit down and read a book in peace, they can close the door and give orders that they are not to be disturbed. Their half-grown children, who, in their first experimental years of being grown,
 need privacy, have no such privilege. "After all, the living room is just as much your little brother's as yours, and if he wants to listen to the radio you can't shut him out."

In point of fact little brother probably has no intention of listening to the radio, and Johnny and Susy know it. He never thought of such a thing until he found that there were to be guests. What he actually will do is to listen in, not on the broadcast, but on his brothers and sisters and their friends, embarrassing them by his comments and interruptions, and saving any worthwhile episodes to repeat to willing ears another day.

If young people are to entertain at home they should be granted the same privacy which their parents are able to command. When they have guests the living-room should be cleared and kept cleared of young intruders.

Lovely Gifts

By MARY GRAM BONNER

"WE DON'T really deserve any presents," said Jilly Bear, and then he told Willy Nilly he had made such a mess of his floor with the syrup they had used instead of powdered soap.

"That was my fault," admitted
 Honey Bear.

"Every one gets presents," said Willy Nilly. He showed them all the packages he had made while he had been off shopping. There were odds and ends of amusing toys and dressing-up hats which were for the Big Box That Held Things Just For Fun.

There were heavy blankets and a new rug and another lamp and some more china. There were all sorts of good things to eat, and what fun they had as they unwrapped the parcels and then put everything away.

Now it was time for the gifts.
 "This is for you, Christopher,"
 and the crew found a bright and shining set of little pants.

Christopher's eyes gleamed.
 "What fun I'll have with them!"
 he cried, and he thought to himself that they would make a lovely note as well as shine so beautifully in the bright sunlight.

Top Watch was given a new marble and a bright little leather case.
 Flip had a new collar and Sweet Flip had a new one. The boys had some shirred socks and candy and the girls had toys to play with and a lot of other odds and ends.

"Did you get some odds and ends for your cat?" asked Top Watch.
 "Oh, that's the one thing I forgot!" exclaimed Willy Nilly.

Yes, the Public Relations here.
 If he had found anything it would be something for Honey Bear.

Parent-Teacher Associations

P-T. A. School No. 5

The regular monthly meeting of the P-T. A. of School No. 5 was held at the school building on the afternoon of Tuesday, November 12.

As soon as classes were dismissed tea was served the teachers and parents from a tea table presided over by Miss Anderson and Miss Wachmeyer of the faculty. The tea was a reminder of the approaching Thanksgiving. The centerpiece was a large pumpkin which had been hollowed and filled with several kinds of delicious homemade cookies. Surrounding the pumpkin was a grouping of the different fruits of the season. Small artificial turkeys were also used in decoration. Arrangements for the tea were made by Mrs. Kaprelian and her committee, Mrs. Schwenk, Mrs. Hyde, Mrs. Schelly, Mrs. Miles, Mrs. Donovan and Mrs. Katchikan.

Before the business session Mrs. Abbott, program chairman, introduced Dr. Minahan of New York, who spoke on "The Care of Children's Feet." He warned his listeners of the results of improper fitting of shoes and stockings and the necessity of intelligent care where there is any weakness of the legs and feet.

The program of the afternoon was given by pupils of Room 5, Miss Powers, teacher, and Room 6, taught by Miss Mulhern. Margaret Sealar announced the following numbers for Room 6:

Two songs, "Indian Lullaby" and "Tag."

Two dances by Janet Schultz and James Rowe.

Pupils of Room 6 sang "Little Red Riding Hood" and gave a short play, "Mary and Her Little Lamb." The numbers for Room 5 were announced by William Van Gaasbeck. The business session was presided over by the president, Mrs. Regan. Miss Powers' Room 5 had the largest number of parents present. The next regular meeting will be held on Tuesday, December 10.

Ulster County Conference

That there has never been a generation when the youth are coming into adulthood in a world that confronts them with so many serious problems all at one time, was the statement of Frank Mason, principal of Saugerties High School in his address upon "The Child and His World Relationship," at the Ulster County P-T. A. Conference on Wednesday at the Saugerties Methodist Church.

He held that the present depression is having more effect upon the children than will be realized until years to come, as they form opinions that make their reaction to the world about them.

Our youth are, as ever, restless, adventurous, idealistic, eager to meet and conquer life but somewhat discouraged over certain obstacles ahead of them. The pessimism of many adults is giving them a gloomy outlook on life. Mr. Mason believes the harm inflicted upon them by the relief situation can never be measured.

He cited as causes for these problems facing youth, the breaking down of past war idealism, and the rise of ultra nationalism, each nation trying to make itself by its own bootstraps, competition instead of co-operation being the rule, the nations throughout the world striving to maintain status quo and the unwillingness of the present generation to let conditions remain because they have always been.

Mr. Mason pointed out ways in which both home and school are failing to prepare youth to meet these changed situations. He asserted that many homes do not understand what it is all about, as the world has moved faster than the parents have been able to keep pace, so the children are meeting problems their parents have not yet solved and are being taught a too narrow and too much dogmatic and cents philosophy. They are not even being furnished in many homes with sufficient reading material of the right sort.

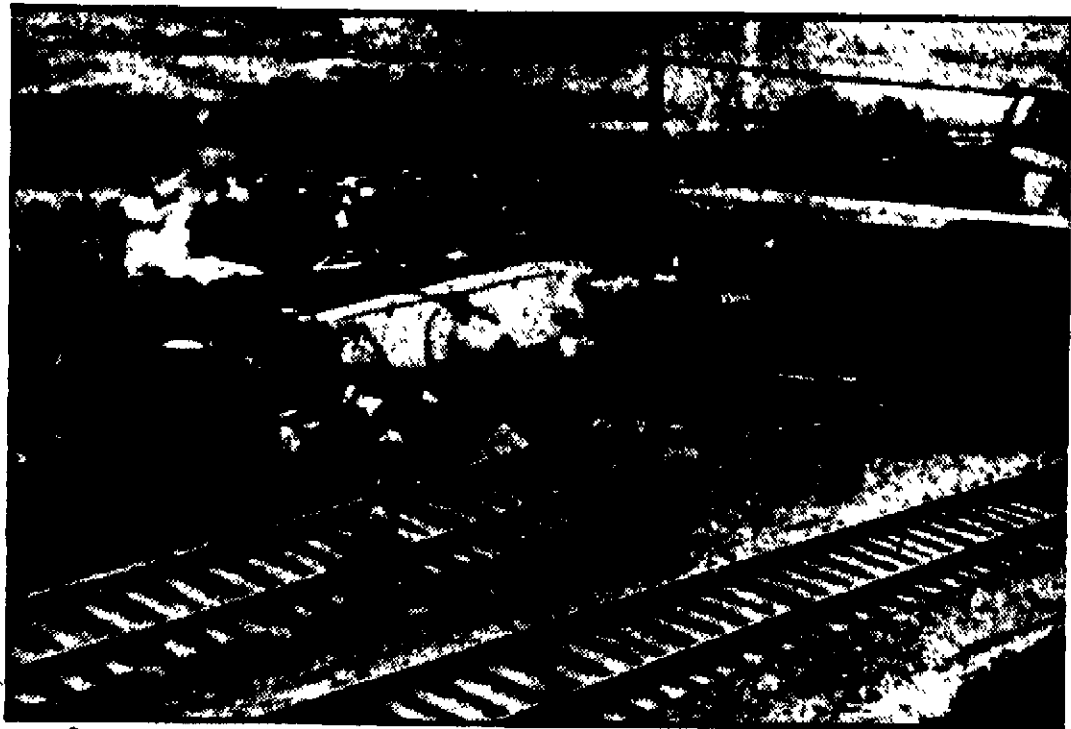

The schools, he added, fail to furnish an adequate curriculum. They cater too much to the higher mentalities and train too much for white collar work. They pay too little attention to the rural pupil, are too much dominated by politics, and give too much mass education. Teachers are given too little freedom in teaching and are inadequately trained in comparison with the requirements in other professions.

Some methods suggested for improvement were: We should move slowly and carefully lest we jump from the frying pan into the fire. The standard of intelligence must be raised by breeding at least as carefully as animals are bred. Training for removal of economic barriers is necessary also the fallacy of force and compulsion must be taught. Youth must be trained for good citizenship and the fact that the state exists for the individual, not the individual for the state should be stressed. People must be made to realize that the common good of all must be worked out, one for all and all for one, as above all nations is humanity.

Grant D. Morse, superintendent of Saugerties schools, in his address of welcome at the morning session asserted that the two great problems common to all people who come into the world are to get into a better world as soon as possible and to improve present conditions as much as possible. He felt that the P-T. A. is doing more than any other organization to improve conditions as their work is with and for the children, improving the relationship between the home and the school, that both may give the child better service. The world moves forward slowly and it is, according to Mr. Morse, by the little things of service and improvement that progress is made.

That "character is what we make out of life and what life makes out of us," was the assertion of Mrs. Harry E. McCormick of Cornwall, new director of the Central Hudson district, in her talk upon "Practical Life Education." She felt that the most complex situation we have to face is character education. Crime is increasing out of all proportion to the population of the country. More power on land and sea and in the air than ever before is the heritage of the children and it is essential that they be internationally minded.

The progressive school, of which there are now several functioning most successfully, accepts the responsibility for character education. The education of the whole child is the starting point, center and end of the system, not subject matter. Under this system, the child is not penalized because he fails in one subject nor is he held back when capable of progressing more rapidly in other subjects. That children are individuals and cannot all be placed into the same mold, that they cannot be coerced or beaten into goodness, and that all should find joy in education are the principles upon which the system is based. Teachers are chosen for their ability to lead, not drive and children's power to think and make decisions should be developed. The trained child acts to commands, the educated child reacts to life, said Mrs. McCormick in closing.

Reports of the state convention held at Buffalo were given by Mrs. Lewis Fellows, newly appointed Ulster county director, who presided at this conference, also by Mrs. Joseph Craig, president of Kingston Federated Council.

Brief talks were given by the following chairmen: Parent Education, Mrs. J. C. Eason of Saugerties; Safety, Mrs. Harry Simmons of Newburgh; Program, Mrs. D. D. Lardin of Cornwall; and Publicity, Mrs. W. R. Anderson of Kingston.

Mrs. Anderson introduced a "Publicity Skill" written by the former state publicity director, Mrs. Tristram W. Metcalfe, of Tuckahoe, and used last spring at Cornell P-T. A. Institute. This skill was presented by Musical Director Maynard of Saugerties schools and Mrs. Lewis Fellows of Saugerties, most acceptably.

Reports of Ulster county units showed various activities: Saugerties spent over $100 on welfare health work, gave $100 to a senior toward his college course and $25 to a senior towards graduation expenses. Their program theme is "The Modern Parent Knows the School."

Mt. Marion's theme, "International Understanding," has a program for the year with speakers upon Mexico, Arabia, Japan, Alaska and other countries.

Lake Katrine bought a radio for the school, secured a circulating library of 25 books, served hot lunches and treated 40 pupils to the play, "Wizard of Oz."

Walkill, with a father for president, served milk to 24 children, gave shoes and rubbers, glasses and dental work and sponsors a "Dancing class for children."

Whiteport gave St. Nicholas magazine for school use, spent $10 on supplementary books and planted trees and shrubs on the school grounds. Creek Locks furnished text books and milk to needy children, installed two lavatories in the school with proper towels and soap, and bought reading books of prose and poetry.

Port Ewen bought an electric stove and steel dish cabinet for the school, had 24 pre-school children examined at a health clinic and gave pupils a lawn party.

Kingston 4, furnished hot cocoa to lunch pupils and Safety Magazine for school use and sent a boy to Y. M. C. A. camp.

Kingston bought a piano and an arithmetic project for the school and gave the children 285 pounds of Christmas candy.

Kingston 6 did much welfare work, served hot soup to lunch pupils at one cent a cup and bought a printing outfit for the school.

Kingston 7 gave each downstairs grade child a Christmas gift and a net and two volley balls to the upstairs grade children. They gave 605 half pints of soup and cocoa and 61 half pints of milk to the children.

Kingston Federated Council sponsored a P-T. A. Institute and also a leadership training class, and tried to help officers and chairmen of local units with their problems.

Donald Fellows rendered two baritone solos at the afternoon session, "A Friend of Mine" and "Sylvia," by Oley Speake. These were much enjoyed.

The Rev. J. C. Eason, of Saugerties Methodist Church, gave the invocation at the morning session.

Luncheon was served by the Ladies' Aid Society of the church.

There were 30 registered delegates and several guests. Registration was in charge of Mrs. Charles Abbott of Kingston.

The conference was invited to meet next fall in Wallkill.

Men of Progress

Leaders of men have ever been precedent speakers. Mild people, no matter how able, never make leaders. Fearlessness and originality are characteristics of all men of progress. They have no reverence for the old simply because it is old; with them it is always a question of pushing forward, of improving on the past, instead of slavishly copying it.

Inspected New East Chester St. By-pass

Members of Traffic Control Committee of Council and Members of Board of Public Works Make Trip Over New By-pass on Friday.

At the last meeting of the Board of Public Works the question of handling traffic on the new East Chester street by-pass was discussed and at that time it was thought that it would be wise to have full stop signs placed on Flatbush avenue where it intersects with the new road and also to have a traffic stop and go light placed on Broadway at East Chester street. No decision was taken, however, and it was decided to make an inspection of the streets later.

On Friday Commissioners Phelps, Roach and Gregory of the board and Aldermen Epstein and Schoonmaker of the Common Council motored over the new by-pass and made a survey of the situation. Mayor Hebelman had planned to make the inspection trip but had been called to Rochester to attend a meeting of the advisory committee of the State Mayors' Conference.

A result of the survey made will be submitted to the Board of Public Works at its next meeting and also to the Common Council when it will be decided just what will be done. One plan being considered is the installing of a stop and go traffic system at Broadway and East Chester street to be synchronized with the present stop and go light at Broadway and Foxhall avenue, and also to synchronize the traffic signals at Foxhall avenue and Hasbrouck avenue and at Hasbrouck avenue and East Chester street, in order to speed up traffic.

There is also being considered the placing of stop and go lights at Broadway and O'Reilly street and also at Broadway and Henry street. Installation of these lights had been asked for in resolutions introduced in the council some time ago.

It is also planned to erect stop signs at the intersection of all side streets with East Chester street.

Lehman Tells Mayors Of Change in Relief

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 15 (AP)—Governor Herbert H. Lehman formally notified the mayors of the state today that with the withdrawal of Federal contributions toward home relief for the unemployed, December 1, the municipalities and the state will have to share the burden.

In a telegram to William P. Capozzi, secretary of the State Conference of Mayors, in Syracuse, the Governor said that the state is prepared to reimburse the municipalities to the extent of 40 per cent of their home relief expenditures.

The Governor's telegram follows: "The Federal government has announced that it will shortly discontinue all aid to the states and its municipalities for home relief. I beg again to draw the attention of the mayors and other municipal authorities throughout the state to the fact that when the Federal government withdraws its aid for direct relief the cost of home relief will have to be borne by the state and the municipalities." "As I publicly stated on July 2 and on a number of subsequent occasions, the division of the cost of such relief will, in accordance with the provisions of the Wicks Act, be 60 per cent by the municipalities and 40 per cent by the state. The state stands ready to reimburse municipalities to the extent of 40 per cent of their approved expenditures for home relief."

Police Recover Auto Used in Bank Job

Chester, N. Y., Nov. 16 (AP)—Recovery of an automobile in which three bandits escaped after robbing the Chester National Bank of $3,000 spurred state police today in their search for the men.

The car, containing $45 in pennies stolen from the bank, was found last night on a back road near Middle-town, 15 miles west of Chester. Corporal J. Kollsted of the State Police said the men apparently continued their flight in another automobile and slipped through a heavy cord of troops and deputy sheriffs.

The pennies were in a sack and were identified as part of the loot taken from the bank yesterday. Corporal Kollsted said. The license plates on the abandoned automobile, he added, were stolen in Brooklyn.

The men, dressed in blue overalls and wearing dark glasses, entered the bank and threatened five employees and two customers with machine guns and pistols. All were forced to lie on the floor as the holdup men scooped the money from cash drawers.

Police Round Up Six False Alarm Ringers

After Spending Considerable Work on the Case They Were Successful in Rounding up Six Boys Who Have Confessed to Turning in the False Alarms of Fire Election Night.

With no clue to work on the Kingston police department by hard work and considerable expenditure of time have finally solved the mystery of who turned in the many false alarms of fire on Election Night in the city. The police have rounded up six boys, ranging in age from 8 to 13 years, and all six have confessed.

Chief of Police J. Allan Wood said today that owing to the age of the boys he did not care to make their names public at this time until it was decided just what action, if any, would be taken against the youths. The chief said that a conference would be held today by the police department and the fire department to determine just what action should be taken.

The turning in of a false alarm of fire is a dangerous game, for it jeopardizes the lives not only of the firemen on the fire apparatus, but the citizens on the streets through which the fire apparatus passes.

Closing Services at St. James M. E. Church

The third service of the St. James Home Coming program was held at the church last evening, with the Rev. Herbert Hassard, pastor of the Hunter M. E. Church, as speaker. Mr. Hassard recalled his boyhood days in Stone Ridge, and later as a student in old Kingston Academy, from which he was graduated in 1894, how he saw the present St. James Church in the building, and came under the influence of pastor, now Bishop Anderson, who persuaded him to go to Wesleyan University to study for the ministry.

Dr. Hassard preached from the text, "I am bound, but the word of God is not bound," and dedicated his sermon to the four hundredth anniversary of the translation of the Bible into the English language. He pointed out several examples of men who, like Paul, John Bunyan, Wycliffe and Tyndall, were imprisoned or killed, but still spread the Christian message among their fellow men.

The splendid volunteer choir, composed of young people of the church, again led the singing under the able leadership of Robert Hawley, who was also the soloist of the evening.

The closing services of the week's program will be held tomorrow, with the district superintendent, the Rev. Joseph W. Chase, preaching the sermon at the morning service in the afternoon and evening a social hour will be held in the church parlor at four o'clock, followed by a family supper at six and a family program at seven.

Will Rogers Backed Red Cross Work

Will Rogers, the beloved humorist and philosopher whose tragic death in Alaska is mourned by the whole

English-speaking world, was in 1927 made a life member of the American Red Cross by vote of the Central Committee. When he received the letter of notification from National Headquarters, he told the country of his appreciation in his daily column on events which he contributed to a string of daily papers. Writing in his characteristic and intimate style he said:

"Today I got my official document from the Red Cross, of being made a life member. Well, sir, I am just crazy about it for two reasons. One of course is that it is the greatest organization in the United States (including the world). The other reason is it looks like a diploma. You know I never had any kind of a diploma. I never finished from anything."

"I always did want something that looked important. I never even had an oil share. I waited all these years to get something to frame. And if Congress doesn't help the Mississippi Valley this next term I will devote my remaining years to telling the truth about them."

When Judge John Barton Payne, then chairman, wrote to notify him of his election, Mr. Rogers replied:

"My dear Judge Payne.—While I answered you through the press I want to tell you now that's just the biggest thing that I ever had happen to me, and it especially came at a time when it made me feel mighty good."

The Red Cross is the only thing I can think of in America that we couldn't possibly get along without. If the people only knew one-half of its worth we could raise any sum of money in 24 hours."

My membership is already bearing fruit. I've booked 12 benefits."

Sincerely WILL ROGERS

P. S. I hope I don't disgrace the organization."

That his appreciation of the honor was deep and real, Will Rogers showed in deeds as well as in words.

Before the life membership was given to him, his service to the Red Cross had included the raising of more than $100,000 for sufferers in the Mississippi Valley flood in 1927. A benefit performance on the steamship Leviathan, in which he worked with Charles Evans Hughes, now Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court, resulted in the raising of $40,000 in a single performance for sufferers from the Florida hurricane in 1926. When an appeal was made by the Red Cross in 1929 for funds to help families of 61 miners killed in an explosion at McAlester, Okla., he made a large personal contribution and also aided in making the appeal for funds.

CALIFORNIA TURKEY CROP

"ESCAPES" THANKSGIVING

San Francisco (AP)—Thanksgiving Day and turkey have a close association, but in California the holiday brings consumption of only 15 to 20 per cent of the state's turkey crop.

Another 35 per cent goes to market ordinarily during the Christmas season, while the remainder is sold over the counter after the first of the year, says George Harkin, manager of the California Turkey Growers Association, cooperative organization.

Calves of heavy weight are a bright, silver white color, have the old name "cutwater," that is, they are cut out of a highly crystalline solid when cooled to cause a dense structure, and in this state, they are used in the food industry, and are sold in the food market. They are the only kind of meat, water, or the other kind, and are sold in the food market.

FLASHES OF LIFE SKETCHED IN BRIEF

By Associated Press

"People Who Laugh Are Kindly People"

Carrying out the theory that "people who laugh easily and frequently are kindly people," and that "laughing makes people handsomer," Noah Bellhars, make-up artist and impersonator, brought plenty of laughs from a large audience at the Fair Street Reformed Church Friday night.

The occasion was the second in the series of four entertainments being sponsored by the consistory of the church and the Young Married Women's Club. The next will be on November 22, when Charles Howard Plattenburg, newspaper editor, former member of the Iowa legislature and traveler, will speak on "This Machine Age."

Among Mr. Bellhars' best numbers Friday night was the debate, in character, on the question of the relative merits of bald heads and whiskers, and the description of "Miss Viney" of "Lovey Mary" fame of her "denomination garden—the sturdy flowers, the bed of geraniums that needed frequent 'reviving,' the lilies that were lovely to look at and seemed to stand aloof and finally the sweet-smelling varieties that filled the air with perfume and represented just the plain everyday Christians.

Every fall, when cool weather brings out the hikers in increasing numbers, they find new facilities prepared for them in the Harriman and Bear Mountain Sections of the Palisades Interstate Park. The Park Commission has endeavored to keep abreast, or a little ahead of the demands for ever-night camping shelters along the trails. There are now 12 of these shelters, placed so as to provide for convenient breaks of week-end hikes across the park from north to south or east to west. Others are under consideration. Suggestions by hikers as to good locations for such shelters have been and are cordially invited.

Today

Broadway: "Rendezvous." Here's a dramatic thunderbolt, alive with action, mystery, intrigue and romance. So fast paced is this talkie that the audience will be swept along in a current of mystifying events and William Powell, the star of the film, is shown to best possible advantage in a rish role that fits his many talents to perfection. It's a spy story centering around the war, a tale of the secret police and their methods of attaining factual data of great importance to the nations they work for. Into the thick of it is William Powell, surrounded by danger and he walks his suave and entertaining way through one of the most absorbing melodramas of the year. The show also gives Rosalind Russell a chance to show her ability, a thing she does so convincingly that she almost steals the honors away from the star. Also in the cast are to be found the talented Blaine Barnes, Cesar Romero, Henry Stephenson and Lionel Atwill. This production has an all around appeal, sprinkled as it is with gay humor and moments of suspense. A well bit of movie entertainment, well worth seeing.

Orpheum: "Together We Live" and "Stone of Silver Creek." Diversified double feature constitutes the Orpheum entertainment, the first a problem story with Ben Lyon featured. The second offering stars Buck Jones in a reliable thriller of the western school of melodrama.

Kingston: "The Crusades." Cecil

R. DeMille, master producer of motion picture extravaganzas, turns again to history for his latest dramatic enterprise and brings a story of the Crusades to the screen that is a combination of fact and fiction, carefully blended into another DeMille masterpiece of spectacle and lavishness. To be honest the story is rather trite as it describes the love affair of Richard the Lion Hearted, who takes his Crusaders to the Holy Land to avoid a marriage distasteful to him. While there he marries Princess Berengaria, but the ruler of the Saracens, one Saladin, captures the princess and a gigantic battle ensues. These battle scenes are as lively as any ever thrown on a screen and the photography throughout the whole play is beautiful. The whole picture is pageantry at its best and a cast of many thousands all help create the atmosphere of strength and breadth that the play possesses in great quantity. Henry Wilcoxon, Loretta Young, Katherine DeMille, Montague Love, Joseph Schildkraut and William Farnum are all featured. But Jan Kietz, as Saladin, gives the finest performance in the picture. His is a brilliant characterization and an added bright spot in an already fine production.

Tomorrow

Broadway Same. Orpheum: "Reckless Roads." Regis Toomey and Judith Allen have a thrilling time in the feature at the Orpheum and although the excitement isn't logical it's still more or less entertaining. An added feature of the program is another chapter in the serial known as "Tarzan." Selected short offerings complete the Sunday bill.

Almanac 3,000 Years Old

From an Egyptian Tomb

An almanac, which records show, is more than three thousand years old, recently was found in one of the buried tombs of Egypt. The owner must have valued it, since he had it buried with him. It is written on papyrus, in columns, and there are 25 pages well preserved. Its chief purpose was to inform its owner whether each day was lucky or unlucky for any sort of enterprise, notes a writer in the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Certainly it was not so important to know that a certain day was the fifth of Tebt, with a new moon and a prospect of rain, as to know that it was a day when you must not start on a journey, look at a rat, wash yourself with water, or even go outdoors before daylight.

It was issued for the four years following the fifty-seventh year of Ramesses the Great. The days are written in red ink, and each one is followed by three characters—morning, day, evening, each with its significant mark to denote prosperous, indifferent, adverse. The first sign is in black ink, and the others are in red.

For example, the twenty-fifth of Thoth is marked "Good, good, middling," with the caution, "Do not go outdoors in the evening."

Viking Warriors Really

Rough and Ready Fellows

Viking warriors loved a fight so much that when they were stimulated by strong drink and war songs, they would fight brothers and friends, and even attack rocks and trees, notes a Trouthelme, Norway, writer in the Detroit News.

Most famous of these warriors were the berserks, or champions who served as bodyguards to kings and chiefs. They fought just for the fun of it, often challenging one another to mortal combat. Relics of their period in Norwegian history are displayed in museums throughout the country, and in Trouthelme is a rich collection which attracts many visitors.

One of Norway's berserks, Starkader, became a combined Norse Hercules and Robin Hood. Although he delighted in fighting and killed as many as nine men in one encounter, he always protected the poor, upbraided the country for its soft living and recommended eating raw meat and toasted water.

At last, worn out by age, he asked a friend to kill him, calmly submitting to death. So fierce was his look, however, that he had to turn away his face before this executioner dared to strike the mortal blow.

Helen Mack Ambitious To Make Film Producers 'Very Unhappy'

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—A girl who made good and wants to make better is Helen Mack, whose ambition is to make the movie producers very unhappy.

Perhaps that is stating it a little baldly, but let the diminutive Rock Island (Ill.) product explain it. "Maybe I've made them unhappy already—with the work I've done in their pictures. You could make that answer, I know. But what I mean is to make them so unhappy that they'll—that they'll groan and gnash their teeth if they can't get me for a picture."

"There are players like that, you know. Leslie Howard. He's not just a star, is he? No, he's so good that when they have a good part they wonder, right away, if they can get him to do it. And Claudette Colbert . . .

To Make 'Em Cry

"To be a star doesn't mean anything. But to be a good enough actress that producers will simply cry if they can't have you in their pictures does mean something. I'd like to be that good. Yes, I am ambitious. But aren't we all?"

Helen used to be a child actress in pictures but lived it down to make good as a leading lady and youthful character actress.

"I've had several very good roles in poor pictures, and some tiny roles in good pictures. If I were as good as I want to be—if I could make producers unhappy the way I mean—I could be sure of very good roles in very good pictures, all the time."

Likes Comedy

Helen recently completed her first comedy role—that of Harold Lloyd's sister in "The Milky Way"—and her new ambition is centered on comedy.

"I always could make myself weep and be unhappy enough to do an emotional scene," she explains, "but I've just discovered how difficult it is to put over a comedy scene. And anybody can get a laugh with a funny line of dialogue, but to get a laugh without saying a line, simply by pantomime, is something else. Leo McCarey, our director, likes pantomime laughs and that has given me something else to be ambitious for. I want to be a good comedienne."

"Treasure-hunting," started as a social game, has been taken up by Wall Street.

Helen Mack used to be a child actress but she "lived it down" to make good as a leading lady.

Forecast Wireless

James Clerk Maxwell (1831-1879), the famous mathematician, had the unique triumph of proving that wireless must exist more than 20 years before the first wireless signal was detected. His figures proved that wireless waves exist and he measured the speed at which they must move, although wireless waves were as yet undiscovered.

Monkeys Vary in Size

"Monkeys" vary tremendously in size. Of the 600 species of primates—lemurs, monkeys and apes—the smallest is the marmoset, writes Chester N. Carpenter, Detroit, Mich., in Collier's Weekly, which weighs only nine ounces when fully grown, and the largest is the male gorilla, which weighs about 400 pounds or 700 times more.

Copper Was First Metal

Found by Reducing Agent

We have no record of the time when men first began to use metals. Doubtless the first ones used were those which are found naturally in a free state. Gold, for example, writes Dr. Thomas M. Beck in the Chicago Tribune, is almost always found as the metal. Copper, although usually occurring as an ore, is occasionally found in metallic lumps as a result of some unusual combination of natural causes. And while the available terrestrial iron occurs entirely as a nonmetallic ore, small amounts of the free metal occasionally reach the earth as meteorites.

The Stone age did not end until the chemical reaction known as reduction was discovered some ten thousand years ago. Since most of the metallic ores within our reach consist of a metal combined chemically with at least one other nonmetallic element, usually oxygen, it is necessary to obtain the free metal by reducing the ore; that is, by heating it with some substance having a greater affinity for the oxygen than does the metal itself. The earliest reducing agent to be used was carbon, readily obtainable in the form of charcoal. Thus when copper oxide is heated with carbon, copper and carbon dioxide are produced.

The first metal made available by the discovery of this reaction probably was copper. In those ancient days metals were desired for the manufacture of cutting instruments, and pure copper is too soft for this purpose. However, some neolithic genius discovered that the addition of a little tin (another easily reducible metal) formed the alloy bronze which was hard enough to satisfy the simple wants of the period.

A few thousand years later iron came into use and since then has remained the most important of all metals. By the year 1800 almost a dozen solid metals were known, of which only seven (iron, copper, tin, lead, zinc, silver, and gold) had any practical industrial uses.

Reds, Yellows, "Warm" Colors

Reds and yellows and their derivations are said to be "warm" colors producing a feeling of warmth and cheer in a room where such hues predominate. "Warm" colors include all modifications of red and yellow, from the palest straw tint down through orange and brown, and from the most delicate rose color to the deepest crimson and mahogany.

Maple Deserts Its Colonial Lines To Go Modern In Versatile Way

Designs for maple combine new effects and old comfort

By MARGERY TAYLOR
(Copyright, 1935, by McCall's Magazine for The Freeman)

Maple doesn't have to be "quaint" and colonial—that clever young designer, Russel Wright has taken the good old American wood and created from it beautiful furniture forms as twentieth century as can be.

It is real art the way the lustrous golden beauty of the wood is brought out in large smooth planes and restful horizontal lines. The sleek finish contrasts perfectly with the rough weaves and vivid colors of the new rugs, curtains and upholstery.

One recently finished living room with this new furniture has walls covered in natural colored Japanese grass cloth, white plaid wool rug, chairs upholstered in brown and white, plaid homespun, occasional chairs in white leather—and copper, white and cork accessories.

A bedroom for the modern maple has beige walls, a striped rug in egg-shell and brown, bedspread and draperies of nubby coral cotton striped with brown, and coral, and eggshell accessories. Those new lampshades wrapped with white wool complete the picture.

This new maple is not only modern in a sane way, and beautiful, but it is as sturdy and comfortable as its ancestors. Chair seats and backs are high enough, and there is a new kind of chair with the adjustable back and seat of the good old Morris chair.

Most "knowing" in design of this maple furniture are the bookshelves and cabinets which play double and triple roles. The units can adapt themselves to any room and become handy accessories to couch and tables. Some chests have open spaces for books. In fact, the combinations of modern maple furniture seem to be endless.

PATTERN MAKES INDIVIDUAL CHARM

Here's a frock with a rainbow promise for your future... safely feminine, flattering, new! Why, the very simplicity of this Marian Martin pattern makes you itch to get started, even though you've never made a frock before. You'll find your figure taking on new lines of feminine grace with that soft bodice pleating into the neck and releasing again into a becoming "ruff" that lends just a dash of old-fashioned coquetry! The trim, tailored detail of the cuffs and belt smartly contrast with the soft flattery of unpressed skirt pleats. The fabric! It's as inspired as the pattern—for this sheer wool georgette boasts warmth as well as charm. But any of the lovely novelty or lace weaves sheers will make this a frock with a future!

Pattern H5650 is designed for sizes 14 to 20 and 22 to 42. Size 16 requires 3 yards 54 inch fabric.

New Paris Hats Recall Fashions Of Gaby Deslys

By ADELAIDE KERR

Paris (AP)—Waistlength mantilla veils and bird hats, scarfs and muffs, evoking shades of Gaby Deslys, are the latest 1936 millinery notes shown in Agnes new collection.

The most voluminous veils Paris has shown since the war, falling in a cloud like a bridal veil to the waist, top many of the designer's winter models. Some are worn thrown back from the forehead over the shoulders, while others are a filmy black net circle or a square yard of colored tulle falling over the face and shoulders.

The hats they trim are small—a black felt toque pinched up on top in a ridge like a Spanish senorita's comb with the veil falling like a mantilla, or a small velvet toque swathed in a midst of black tulle spattered with black chenille dots.

The bird hats and muffs, bringing memories of the gay nineteen hundreds, made everyone stare on the opening day. Some of the chapeaux had two bright birds fastened right in front, their wings sweeping backward, as though they had just poised in flight. Others were birdbreast toques mounting to a peaked ridge or finished with birds of paradise or egrettes swooping back or down under the chin. With them went flat feather muffs, sometimes having two birds with outspread wings splashed right in front, and bird scarfs with a boa of breast feathers encircling the throat and wings poised on one side. Rich blue violet, henna brown and green were favorite plumage colors. Black and blue were the most popular hat hues.

To keep step with the military millinery vogue the designer launched Napoleonic felts with gold cockades and "marshall" tricorns finished with egrette spikes.

The entire collection stressed height, either in crowns or in trims.

Women Want Facts of Food

Ithaca, N. Y., Nov. 16.—"Buying food for 25 million American homes is 'big business' for which women are mainly responsible," says Professor Marion Fish of the New York State College of Home Economics at Cornell University.

"This shows the need for, and intelligent use of real facts, both about food and the family. It means knowing how foods are sold, and knowing how proposed food laws are introduced and discussed in Congress."

Miss Fish says every woman should not only be able to stretch the family dollar and be assured of quality but should help in any movement which will aid other housewives in the same direction. According to Miss Fish, this broader social interest is necessary if individual consumers are to buy wisely.

"For example, the food and drug bill which Congress has been discussing for the past two years may affect the facts made known to buyers. The consumer should follow such bills and tell her elected representatives the protection she wants in buying," Miss Fish says.

The present food and drug act prescribes that the net contents of a can or package must appear on the label. Miss Fish says that every homemaker should read the weight on the package, and compare the price for a pound of that food with the price of a pound of a similar food. Particularly at a bargain sale it is important to read the net contents on the label.

Less About Quality
The homemaker gets less information about quality or grade because this is not required, Miss Fish says. The secretary of Agriculture has the power to set the standard of quality for foods except meat, which is regulated by the meat inspection act. Any food which does not meet the standard set by the secretary must be labeled "imitation" or else given a distinctive name, or it may be labeled "sub-standard." This confuses most homemakers, and many consumers believe that a national system of labeling foods according to grade and quality would be simpler and more helpful.

When a family has to count pennies the homemaker may ask herself if the less expensive food she chooses has a similar food value to the more expensive food. Food specialists say for example, that Vitamin C foods, as fresh or canned tomatoes or oranges, should be eaten every day by children and three or four times a week by grown-ups. Miss Fish says New York state homesevens home-canned tomatoes would cost just about one-fifth as much a day as would orange juice.

Another question a homemaker should ask herself is, according to Miss Fish, "Is the variety of food I buy the best one for my needs?" Some canned foods have certain names to indicate different varieties. Canned salmon, for example, comes packed under its various names: chooker, sockeye or red, medium red or other or silver, pink, and chunk. The chunk is usually the least expensive and the chunk the most expensive. To her chooker salmon for an occasional dish or for croquetage when the flavor is blended with other ingredients is not wise buying when another and cheaper variety would make just as tasty a dish, Miss Fish says.

LEARN TO TALK WITH EASE

WHAT IS CECILE'S POPULARITY SECRET?

Like bees around honey, the men flock about Cecile!

"She's not such a marvelous talker," the other slightly green-eyed girls say, watching this mystery of allure.

No, she's not. But oh, what a marvelous talker Phil feels that he is, whenever he chats with Cecile! And Jerry enjoys telling her a funny story just to hear her appreciative little chuckling laugh.

Ken, listening in over the back of the chair, is rather the silent sort himself, but he enjoys hearing good talk, as who doesn't? He never finds any better brand than in the general vicinity of Cecile.

She's that grand person who, to the question "Have you heard this one?" always answers "No." She isn't the type of "good listener" who hangs on the speaker's every word, like a cat waiting for a mouse to pop out of a hole. On the other hand, her amused, alert eyes never strayed boredly away from the speaker. Her comments show that she has been following along the route of the conversation with interested thoughts of her own.

When Phil says "I was never so completely bowled over in my life as when I mailed to my absent employer a letter I meant for my mother," Cecile may chime in with, "What, not more bowled over than you were when you sat on the picnic cake?" referring to an event of childhood days. Or she may merely exclaim, "Oh, to reveal the details of the letter to mother which might have cleared the boss."

At any rate, she does not break in with "Great guns, I did that once, myself, and it lost me the best job I ever had," or some equally ill-chosen comment which draws the spotlight away from Phil and back upon herself.

Skill in conversation, and how to acquire it, are discussed in a modern and practical vein in our 66-page Home Institute booklet, "Improving Your Conversation." It tells you how to build up a "good story" which will make your remarks and ideas alive, and not stamp you a mental flounderer. It explains conversational success in both general terms, and gives many other bits of conversational etiquette which mean social ease and enjoyment for you.

A national health demonstration showing how the high death rate from pneumonia can be lowered, has been snapped out and is setting actively under way with the state of New York as its province ground. Practical medical campaigns in many sections of the country have shown that many of the first steps in pneumonia can be reduced to a minimum by prompt action. The New York demonstration is being planned in three steps in a nation-wide effort to reduce the death rate from pneumonia in the winter of the year.

Flowers "Bloom" As Paris Shows Spring Fashions

By ADELAIDE KERR
(Associated Press Fashions Editor)

Paris (AP)—Flowers bloomed again in the Paris fashion field when Patou launched his new midseason mode for advance spring wear.

Flower printed crepe satins and taffetas fashioned some of the frocks which will be seen at evening parties and big bright twin flowers gave a springlike accent to dinner and dance frocks.

Black crepe satins splashed with white, rose and fuchsia flowers and taffetas printed with multicolored blooms were designed with skirts which were almost tube slender in front and had all the fulness thrust to the back. Their décolletés which plunged low in the back, were fashioned with two tapering shoulder straps of velvet recalling one color in the flower print. Flower trims on other frocks were designed to give a bold accent as two brilliant orange flowers caught at the waistline base of a black crepe gown.

Drapery Simplified

Prapery seen in plain crepes and printed georgettes was a much simpler affair than the complicated swathings shown earlier in the season. New evening gowns confined their drapes to horizontal, body-molding shirrings around the hips or bodice or to long twin panels drawn from the hemline back to the shoulders.

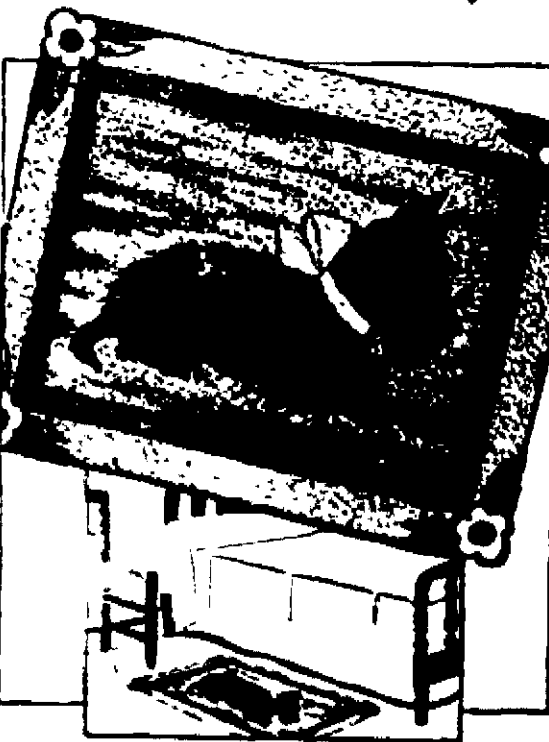

Night time tailleurs, sleek and slim as a greyhound, were an important item in the collection, indicating this type of costume is finding increasing favor both with dressmakers and their clientele for theater and restaurant dinner wear.

The New "Straws"

Patou launched them in black lace crepe and crepe satin with sheath in-step-length skirts as slender as a reed and short fitted jackets. Their blouses were big sleeved designs of black chiffon or silver threaded black organza having big bishop sleeves or models of shimmering shell pink bugle beads with brief cap sleeves.

Some were worn with toques of dull braided straw finished with brief visor brims and standing feather trims. Hats for advance spring daytime wear were pert straw toques or big straws with low crowns and wide brims which curled up at side back or all around. Most of their trims were simple ribbon cockades.

Many Yellow Jacket Followers Are Expected At Albany Game Sunday

At least 3,000 fans are expected to turn out for the Yellow Jacket-Knickerbocker football game at Bleecker Stadium, Albany, Sunday afternoon, and according to indications there will be a goodly number of Kingstonians among the gathering.

The Yellow Jackets have been drawing well at the Fair Grounds where they have defeated all opposition so far this fall and are unscathed upon in seven games. Indications are that many of the local followers will trail them to the capital city with expectations of seeing them make it eight in a row.

Although the Knicks gained prominence by playing Sing Sing and the New Rochelle Bulldogs, it is hard to find anyone who thinks they have more than an even chance with Charlie Ralbie's Waaps. The upstarters lost to Sing Sing and the Bulldogs. Outside of these clubs they met only mediocre opposition. Their tilt with the Yellow Jackets should give Jack Humphrey, their backer, a fair idea of how their chances might be provided they get their professional franchise in one of the big leagues next fall. They seek this, but whether they'll realize the goal remains to be seen.

Edsel Walker, husky Catekill negro, plays fullback for the Knicks. He'll start against the Jackets at Bleecker Stadium, but whether he'll do much ground gaining is something that cannot be counted on because the Bee has stopped him before and are not to do it again. Buckley, the Albany quarterback, has also played against the Kingstonians previously and although he is good was not able to do anything spectacular against the Jackets.

Probable Starters

The Yellow Jacket starters have not been announced, but it is presumed that Eddie Minahan, Gil Keller, Jimmy Cullum and Eddie Burgevin will make up the backfield for the opening.

Tentative lineups for both clubs are as follows:

Yellow Jackets
LE—DeBrooky
LT—Rablie
LG—Tomshaw
C—Beany
RG—Steigerwald
RT—J. Tiano
RE—Moebey
QB—Minahan
LHB—Keller
RHB—Thomas
FB—Cullum

Knicks

The Yellow Jackets will travel to Albany by bus, leaving the American Legion building at 11:30 sharp. Buses carrying the local fans will start on the dot of 12 noon. Starting time of the game is 2:30. Besides the buses many private cars are expected to make the trip, too, meaning that most of the fans who patronize the games at the Fair Grounds will be at Bleecker Stadium for the Waaps' first duel away from home this season.

COCHRAN WINS SIXTH STRAIGHT IN BILLIARDS

Chicago, Nov. 16 (AP)—Johnny Layton, the deliberate shotmaker from Sedalia, Mo., tonight faces Walker Cochran in an attempt to halt the San Franciscoan's run to the world three cushion billiards championship.

Layton tackles the San Francisco wizard, who already holds the 18.2 ballgame title, while Allen Hall of St. Louis, meets Tiff Denton of Kansas City, in the other night affair. Arthur Thurnblad of Chicago, and Willie Hoppe, of New York, the only players with chances of overtaking Cochran, were listed for afternoon appearances. Thurnblad was matched with Otto Reibelt of Philadelphia while Hoppe's foe was Jay Roseman, youngster from Vellojo, Calif.

Cochran last night smothered Roseman 16 to 20, for his sixth straight victory. Layton showed flashes of his best form in defeating Angus Kierkeboer of Chicago, 54 to 28, in 52 minutes.

Army and Notre Dame One of the Biggest Affairs in Football

New York, Nov. 16 (AP)—Army and Notre Dame, their gridiron glory little diminished by defeats, clashed today for the 32nd time since an unheralded little team came out of the west in 1913 and whipped the mighty cadets.

The series, founded on the upset engineered by Knute Rockne and Charles (Gus) Dorais, has grown into one of the biggest affairs in football. Despite a forecast of rain, every one of the 30,000 seats in the Yankee Stadium was expected to be filled at the kickoff. Every ticket was sold weeks ago.

The consensus of the customers favored Notre Dame. The Irish have lost only to Northwestern—a defeat which might be attributed to the combination of injuries and the letdown after a sensational triumph over Ohio State. Army was tumbled by Mississippi State then soundly thrumped by Pittsburgh.

Injuries still handicapped both teams to some extent. Andy Pliner, spark-plug Notre Dame back who missed the Northwestern game, was listed as a doubtful starter, as was Maury Preston, Army right end. Bill Shakespeare, Notre Dame's kicker extraordinary and the bard of Staten Island, had a special day in his honor proclaimed by the borough president.

LAYDEN GOT "KEY TO CITY" BUT HAD TO GIVE IT BACK

South Bend, Ind. (AP)—Elmer Layden, coach of the Notre Dame football team, is wondering just how much sincerity is behind the popular American custom of presenting visiting celebrities with a "key" to the city.

He's dubious since the experience he had when he led the Irish football squad into Columbus, O., before their stirring victory over Ohio State.

Mayor Worley of Columbus met Layden at the train and with a few well-chosen words presented him with a mammoth key to Columbus.

Then they both posed for photographers. Then Layden says, Mayor Worley took the key back, explaining it was the only one he had.

LAST PAIR OF HOCKEY TEAMS START PLAY TONIGHT

New York, Nov. 16 (AP)—The last pair of National Hockey League teams to test their prowess in regular season competition, the Boston Bruins and Montreal Maroons, swing into action at Montreal tonight.

Only the Detroit Red Wings remain idle both tonight and tomorrow while the "Old Men" of the New York Rangers tackle the tough job of playing in Toronto tonight and in Chicago tomorrow.

The Maroons, Stanley Cup winners last spring, and the Bruins, leaders of the American division, look like two of the best clubs in the circuit.

ILLINOIS IN BAD SHAPE ACCORDING TO EXPERTS

Columbus, O., Nov. 16 (AP)—Ohio's hopes for a share of the Big Ten football title hung in the balance today as the Bucks clashed with the fast but light Illinois eleven.

The Ohioans had a decided edge in weight. Coach Bob Zuppke of the invaders declared his squad was riddled by injuries, that he had practically no idea what his starting lineup would be and that he hoped Ohio could be held to a lower score than the 14 to 7 total it rolled up against Drake. The Casey Dutchman grinned as he spoke, however.

Franklin, Brown and Campbell were high scorers for the Pirates.

Another Hard Game For Morgenwecks

The Kingston Cities Service basketball team, which defeated the New York Jewels last Wednesday, thereby snapping out of a slump that saw them drop three straight games will have another severe test Sunday when they meet the Visitations at Prospect Hall, Brooklyn.

At present the Visitations are leading the American League with three straight wins and no defeats for a clean slate. The Jewels were tied with them for the lead until they lost to Kingston and now are in second place in the league standing. Losing to the Morgenwecks was a hard slap for the New Yorkers, who looked like one of the best prospects for the championship of the first half.

The Jewels did not go down without a hard fight, though. They battled all the way and were out in front until the last part of the fray when Kingston made some shots when they were needed most and knotted the score, necessitating an extra period. In the overtime frame Frank Shimek came to the rescue of his club with a field that decided the issue.

Tomorrow night the Kingstonians should have plenty of trouble holding down Carl Johnson, Pete Berenson and Bob McDermott, ace scorers of the Visitations.

Fowler and Haines Named as Officers of Sunday School League

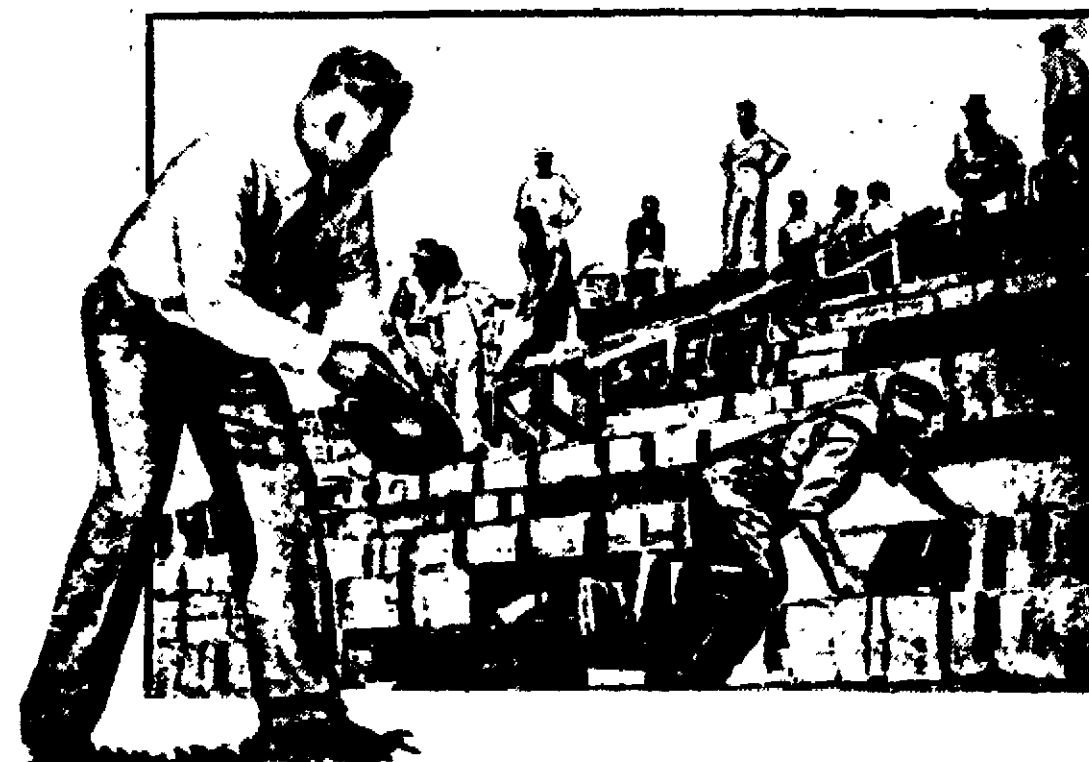

Eight churches were represented at the meeting held at the Y. M. C. A. Friday night for the purpose of reorganizing the Sunday School Basketball League.

Officers were named for the coming year. James Fowler being chosen president and Ellsworth Haines secretary-treasurer. Much interest was shown by those present and it is confidently expected that the League will maintain the prestige which it had in former years. After an extended discussion of players eligible to take part in League games it was decided to hold another meeting on Wednesday night of next week, at the Y. M. C. A., at which time final plans will be made and the various team rosters presented.

Churches represented at the meeting Friday night were: Redeemer, Chester Fox; First Reformed, James Fowler; Trinity M. E., John Bach; First Presbyterian, Earl Tongue; Comforter, Henry Elghway; St. James M. E., Robert Fatum; Clinton Avenue M. E., Ellsworth Haines; Port Ewen M. E., A. H. Short.

Baker U. 'Subsidizes' Its Athletes In Pay-As-You-Go Stadium Project

Workers at Baker university, Baldwin, Kan., are building their own stadium in a project directed and supervised by Emil A. Larson, the athletic director and head coach. Larson says the boys like hard labor, that it helps them to train and that it teaches them to save money at the rate of 25 cents an hour. Larson is shown above at left and at the right in one suit of the three concrete stands the student-athletes are constructing.

Baldwin, Kan. (AP)—Baker university athletes are getting an up-to-date stadium the hard way—and they like it.

All the labor on the first suit of three concrete stands is being done by athletes, under direction of Coach Emil Larson.

Under a $100,000 Kansas law, athletes in the various athletic teams last summer quarantined work and built some retaining walls for the construction athletic field.

The first section of the stadium was ready for the first football game of the season.

Last fall the work started under direction of Coach Larson. The students dug ditches, built terraces, graded and quarried limestone.

They are working hard, however, to save money, and earned sufficient money to pay tuition.

Only one "unlabeled" stand is left to be built.

The project is the dream of Coach Larson, director of athletics and coach at Baker for 16 years. Larson's college teammate, Governor Burton of 1911, started the project.

"We're subsidizing them, all right," Larson said, smiling, as he pointed to 20 boys working on the stadium and sitting courtside.

"They're getting 25 cents an hour for that, and they like it, because most of them who want to get on the team couldn't afford to go to school unless they had jobs. This project gives them a job, besides them, pays their tuition, and in the end will have a permanent improvement that will be paid for when it is finished."

It's "Pay-As-You-Go"

Officials are proud of the project because when it is completed there won't be any bonds and need to pay off. It is strictly a "pay-as-you-go" project.

"Almost in every school there money to develop winning teams, but the players do practically nothing for their tuition. Graduates and others who have contributed can see a difference made of their money in this project," Larson said.

Baker university is the oldest of Kansas, and has an annual enrollment of about 100 students.

Home Leaders Outclass The Albany Emeralds And Win 36-15

Escobar Makes Good Defeating Salica in Fifteen Round Battle

New York, Nov. 16 (AP)—Sixto Escobar of Puerto Rico, 117½ pounds of fighting fury, today was king of the bantamweights.

The little fellow decisively belted the crown from the cocky brow of Lou Salica of New York in Madison Square Garden last night.

For 15 rounds, Escobar, weighing ½ of a pound more than his opponent, played a steady left-hand tattoo on the features of the game but outclassed New Yorker, intermittently crossing over right hand smashes which at times had Salica in a bad way.

The Associated Press score sheet gave the Puerto Rican 14 of the 15 rounds.

Right crosses dropped Salica to his haunches in the third round. The New Yorker stayed down for a count of nine.

In the fifth, Escobar had his adversary groggy with a series of uppercuts and in the seventh he cut his nose with a left jab.

Salica gathered all of his waning strength in the ninth round and called in with one intent, to land a knockout punch. He kept up the barrage through the tenth and part of the eleventh but the Puerto Rican finally stalled the outburst with savage body blows.

The Garden was less than half filled with an official attendance of 8,077 and gate receipts of $18,460.49. It was a return match, Salica having been awarded a questionable decision in their last encounter.

MINNESOTA FAVORED TO WIN OVER MICHIGAN

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 16 (AP)—Minnesota brought the "Little Brown Jug" back home today, but the powerful, unbeaten Gopher eleven was favored to win over Michigan and take it away again.

Gophers vanquished the Wolverines last year for the first time since 1927 and stood today among the few unbeaten teams. Coach Harry Kipke's squad, working behind locked gates all week, had instructions to "hold back nothing," however and were bent on regaining possession of the traditional trophy.

RACING AT ARLINGTON DOWNS, TEXAS TODAY

Arlington Downs, Tex., Nov. 16 (AP)—A fast track was in prospect today for the third annual $15,000 Waggoner Memorial Handicap in which A. A. Buron's Top Row ruled as overwhelming favorite.

Approximately 30,000 were expected to see the mile and one-eighth contest, dedicated to the late Col. W. T. Waggoner, builder of the $2,000,000 Arlington Downs plant and the man who brought localized horse racing to Texas.

NORTH CAROLINA FACES CRUCIAL BATTLE TODAY

Durham, N. C., Nov. 16 (AP)—North Carolina's last berth, the south's only unbeaten, undefeated football team, faced their crucial battle today to avoid Duke University's Blue Devils before 40,000 fans—the largest southern crowd this year.

Prize for many fans have been awaiting credit for the past several months except for fresh recruits, some from and better and cheer.

Leading all the way, with the score 12 to 6 at half time, the Home Leaders outclassed the Albany Emeralds in their game at White Eagle Hall Friday night, the final score being 36 to 15. Bing Van Etten, with four fields and a foul led the Home Leaders. Don Kelly was next with seven points, but every man on the team figured in the scoring. The preliminary game Friday night, between the Five Fingers and the Comforter Aces, resulted in a victory for the former by a score of 23 to 16. Coper led for the Five Fingers, with three fields. Purvis and DeGraff were high scorers for the Aces.

ETHIOPIANS FLEE BEFORE FOE ON NORTHERN FRONT

Selassie Tells Army There Must Be Strength Shown at Amba Alaji

With the Italian army at Makale, Ethiopia, Nov. 16 (AP)—Emperor Haile Selassie has instructed his forces there must be "no retreat" from Amba Alaji, it was reported to the Italian intelligence section today.

Haile Selassie accompanied the message, the report added, with 6,000 rifles.

Ras Seyoum, former governor of Tigre province, has passed the Gibba river, the information continued, leading his troops to Antalo, which lies midway between this city and Amba Alaji. There he will be joined to Degia (governor) Desta and his armed followers, including Degias Ali and Dera.

Other unofficial reports brought here by caravan scouts say the Ethiopian chieftains of Gollan and Jimma provinces have declared themselves in favor of the former Emperor Lij Tassie, son of Menelik, now imprisoned in Ethiopia.

The imprisoned former emperor was deposed in 1916 after starting a movement in favor of the central European powers against the French, British and Italian colonies. He had been in prison near Harar, but recently was reported transferred to a point near the frontier of Kenya for safer keeping.

The latest advices from the Somaliland front place the Italian advanced position just beyond Sasa Baneh, about 130 miles from Harar. The recent battle involving Colonel Maletti's column occurred considerably in the rear of this advance position, about 200 miles from Harar. (Col Maletti's column participated in the drive on Sasa Baneh, once reported captured but later said still held by the Ethiopians.)

Ras Seyoum, officers said, was probably the chieftain who was bombarded with several hundred of his men near Antalo.

Aerial scouts sighted a great red tent surrounded by hundreds of smaller ones on the Antalo encampment, they said after returning from the assault, and officers promptly expressed belief the big tent belong to the long-hunted Ras Seyoum.

Grand Council Meets.

Rome, Nov. 16 (AP)—Italy speeded up to wartime tempo today its precautions for resisting League of Nations economic penalties for the invasion of Ethiopia.

Premier Mussolini dramatically summoned the Fascist grand council to meet at midnight tonight—on the very eve of imposition of economic sanctions—to review Italy's course.

Orders for the Fascist fight against the league measures delivered by Il Duce in a secret session of the prefects of the 96 provinces went throughout the kingdom.

The prefects, Mussolini's own representatives, were directed to see that the economies desired by Il Duce were applied everywhere to counteract the effects of the league boycott and key products embargo, going into operation Monday.

Ethiopian Strategy.

Addis Ababa, Nov. 16 (AP)—Ras Nasibu, assuming personal command on the southern front, was said by an authoritative source today to have direct orders from Emperor Haile Selassie to remain on the defensive against the Italians for at least another month.

Just before leaving his provincial capital of Harar for Jijima yesterday, this source said, Ras Nasibu telephoned the king of kings and expressed the opinion the Italians would be so weakened by sickness and lack of supplies that within three months they would be at the mercy of the Ethiopian army.

"If we can resist so long, a small attack from our side will give us victory," Ras Nasibu was quoted.
